

BROKE RECORD IN HIS TALK

Senator La Follette Talks For Eighteen Hours
And Forty-Three Minutes.

STONE NOW THE HEAD OF FIGHT

Wonderful Exhibition Of Filibustering In The Senate
Over The Emergency Currency Measure Has Just Begun.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 30.—After speaking continuously for eighteen hours and forty-three minutes, United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin at seven-thirty this morning gave up the floor to Senator Stone of Missouri, who announced he was ready to speak sixteen hours.

Broke Record
Senator La Follette's long fight against the emergency currency bill which began yesterday afternoon was one of the most remarkable exhibitions of speaking ever witnessed in

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE
the national capital. Supposedly a sick man he showed wonderful recuperative powers when thought about to stop.

Filibustering
It was a case of filibustering which was unexpected by the republicans. The only rests that the speaker obtained during his long discussion of every subject that had come before congress this session was when he would slip of eggs and milk or eat a bit of sandwich during a roll call.

Aided by Democrats
In his fight Senator La Follette was aided by the democrats of the upper house. When about to stop from fatigue a democratic senator would ask for a roll call of the house and this would take time which would give the Wisconsin man time to recuperate his powers.

Stone Retired
Early in the evening "Gumshoe Bill" Stone retired from the chamber and went to his hotel, leaving orders that he be called before midnight. It was whispered later he would take the floor when La Follette stopped, which was verified this morning, when he appeared shortly before seven and began his part of the battle.

To Kill Bill
Meanwhile the quorum of the Senate had been kept up by continual roll calls and when daylight appeared in the senate chamber a tired lot of men presented themselves. Many had slept in their chairs, some in committee rooms, but the quorum was kept intact.

Tremendous Strain
That La Follette worked under a tremendous strain was apparent to all who witnessed the scene. At times he would seem on the verge of collapse, but would rally and continue his address. He did not confine himself to the measure in question, but wandered continually.

Summoned Back
Some of the republican senators have left the Capital and telegrams have been sent to summon them back in a hurry to take the place of those who are undergoing the terrible strain of the continual session. That the session will continue until a vote is taken now seems assured.

All Summer Perhaps
Senator Aldrich is in earnest as to his fight for the measure and the congressional session may be kept up all summer if it is deemed advisable to do so to pass the measure which will be an issue in the national campaign.

Can Continue
The present session is not like one which must close at a stipulated time and can be continued all summer if necessary. Under the closing portion of the session, when congress must adjourn on a fixed hour, a filibustering party can hold the floor for a few hours and get it until too late to do anything.

Bill Will Pass
It is asserted today that the Aldrich-Vreeland bill will ultimately pass. That the democrats can not muster enough votes to kill it and that the filibustering will stop shortly, giving an opportunity for a vote, then will follow the public building measure and adjournment.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., May 30.—The coming week will usher in the early summer season of conventions, conferences and college commencements. Democratic state conventions will be held in Louisiana, Idaho, Arkansas and one or two other states for the election of delegates to the Denver convention. The split contest between Governor Pindell and Senator Joff Davis has attracted considerable attention to the situation in Arkansas, and the result of the state convention in Little Rock next Tuesday is awaited with interest.

Throughout the South, and in other parts of the country as well, the centennial anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis will be observed next Wednesday. Exercises of a notable character will be held in Richmond, Atlanta, New Orleans and other leading cities.
Of religious, trade, fraternal and other conventions during the week there will be an unusually large number. Those that will attract more or less public attention will be the meetings of the International order of Good Templars in this city, the National Wholesale Grocers association at Atlantic City, the American Medical Association at Chicago, the Southern Music Teachers at Mobile, and the International Association of Police Chiefs at Detroit.

FIRST IOWA PRIMARY WILL BE HELD ON NEXT TUESDAY

Interest In The Senatorial Contest Overshadows All Other Elections.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Des Moines, Ia., May 30.—A statewide primary, the first ever held under Iowa's new primary law, will be held next Tuesday, when the people will decide who they want for United States senator, governor and other officers. The campaign, especially on the republican side, has been one of the most exciting that the Hawkeye state has ever experienced.

Though the primary covers every office for which an election will be held in November, with the exception of the members of the judiciary, the interest in the senatorial contest overshadows all else. The issue at stake is whether Governor Albert B. Cummins shall supplant the venerable United States Senator William B. Allison in Washington. The contest between the two has been raging with intensity for weeks past and has kindled the entire state of Iowa in a political turmoil. The primary vote on the senatorship is advisory to the legislature. Aspirants for the general assembly have agreed to abide by the vote of the primary election and both Allison and Cummins have publicly announced that the result of the primary will determine their fate.

The tariff issue, which but a comparatively short time ago divided Iowa republicans into two strongly hostile camps, is not cutting so much of a figure in the fight for the senatorship as might have been expected. The direct issue of stampation and revision of the tariff, though it still receives some mention, seems to have been absorbed by mutual consent for the time being. Conservative men on both sides of the fence, who have been at the throats of each other for the past seven years, have shown a disposition to unite on the proposition that the tariff question is not the line of demonstration just at present in Iowa.

The fight has become narrowed down to a personal contest between Allison and Cummins. The one question at issue is whether Senator Allison will succeed himself or Governor Cummins will stop from the executive chair in this city into the senate at Washington.

The Allison forces appear confident of victory. They believe that the venerable Senator is as popular throughout Iowa as he ever was. He has been continuously a member of the senate for forty-two years, counting to the end of his present term. Should he be reelected he will be 80 years old when he is next sworn in. Senator Allison's candidacy for reelection was espoused by Senator Dolliver more than a year ago and the public speech-making by the senator is generally admitted to have aided the Allison cause.

The Cummins people are still confident of victory, despite the indirect setback which he received at the state convention last March. They declare that Cummins will carry the state next Tuesday by not less than 20,000. Mr. Cummins has been governor of Iowa for seven years and enjoys wide popularity. It is generally conceded that against any other man than Allison he would be certain of success.

On the democratic side the aspirants for the senatorship are Claude Porter of Centerville and Jerry B. Sullivan of Des Moines. Malcolm Smith of Oakdale will be the prohibition nominee for senator on the primary ticket.
The republican contest for the gubernatorial nomination is also an interesting one, though it has somewhat overshadowed by the Allison-Cummins contest. The three men who aspire to head the republican state ticket are State Auditor B. F. Carroll of Davis county, Lieutenant Governor Warren Grist of Carroll county, and John J. Hamilton, for many years the editor of the Des Moines Daily News. Fred E. White of Keokuk county, former Congressman from the Sixth district, has been decided upon as the democratic candidate for governor. Three prohibitionists also will contest for the gubernatorial nomination in the primary election.

RIPON PLANS TO PRESERVE HOUSE

WHERE REPUBLICAN PARTY HAD ITS INCEPTION YEARS AGO.

PLACED ON THE CAMPUS

Meeting Was Held in February of 1854 Which Resulted in Later Conventions.

Ripon, Wis., May 30.—The first part of next week the birthplace of the republican party will be moved to the Ripon college campus where it is to have its permanent resting place. President H. C. Hughes has received the plans of location from the landscape architect. The building is to be situated on the southwest side, just to the rear of the tennis courts across from Dawes cottages. Ors were received some time ago from the purchaser of the lot at the present site that it would have to be moved by June 1. During the summer months a foundation will be built and the building permanently placed, the dedication to be in September after the opening of the college year.

With the moving of this historic building to its new home, following as it does, the birthday of the state on Friday, comes the old disputed question as to the exact location of the birth of the republican party. Michigan, Maine, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois all claim the honor but there is but little doubt that the party had its inception in the meeting held in the Congregational church in Ripon in February 28, 1854. Called by a Mr. Boyce, composed of democrats, free soilers and whigs this gathering discussed matters of grave importance and determined to organize a new party calling it republican. Michigan claims the honor, but before the meeting was held at Jackson Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, had recognized Wisconsin and the gathering at Ripon. Michigan held the first state convention under the name republican but Wisconsin followed closely in July at Madison following the lines laid down at the Ripon meeting the February before.

This gathering at Ripon in February was caused by the question then being debated in congress whether Nebraska was to be a free or a slave state. Passed by the democratic majority it caused a general upheaval of party lines. Before that there had been democrats and whigs with Locals, Free Soilers, and Know Nothings. The republican party conceived in protest to the action of the slaveholding democratic majority sprang into being and has left its mark on history.

The perpetuating of the historic spot is worthy of due consideration and Wisconsin should be proud to point to it as the spot where the party which has given nine presidents to this Union and has become a world-wide power had its origin. It will be one of the show places of Ripon in the future.

VISITED SCENES OF "THE CRISIS"

DR. SCHLERNITZAUER TELLS OF CHURCHILL'S NOVEL.

OLD YEATMAN HOMESTEAD

Real Name of Major Brinsmade of the "Crisis" Was Yeatman.

Dr. R. A. Schlernitzauer, who is now in St. Louis taking some advanced medical courses, recently visited the old Yeatman homestead which under the name of the Brinsmade homestead figures in Winston Churchill's novel "The Crisis."

His interesting telling of the old house and its surroundings as well as something of the author of the book will not doubt be appreciated by the Gazette readers.

Dr. Schlernitzauer expects to return to Janesville within a year and resume his medical practice.

His letter follows:

St. Louis, Mo., May 23, 1908.

Janesville Gazette, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Mr. Editor:—Perhaps there are those among your readers who might take interest in a few words of history interest concerning St. Louis.

This afternoon I had the pleasure of visiting the old country home of Major Brinsmade, that most lovable old gentleman, Winston Churchill made immortal when he wrote the Crisis.

Major Brinsmade's name was really Yeatman, the real family name of the Carvels is Allen. (The main portion of the Crisis is of course true to life.)

Both families emigrated across the Cumberland, from Virginia and Kentucky in an early day when the great tide of American Civilization first began to flood westward to break homes in the wilderness of southern Illinois and Missouri and settle in the fertile valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi.

The old Yeatman (Brinsmade) mansion is about one hour's ride from Washington and Broadway, the present downtown business center of St. Louis.

Broadway follows the historic trail of the old Brinsmade road northward and westward. Five miles out the country is rolling and hilly and the Mississippi bluffs rise majestic ever up and away from the river and the lowlands.

You climb a winding path of gravel road which seems to cover fully one-half of the seven acres of pasture land, which surrounds the quaint old garden, where every variety of roses are in bloom. Many of the bushes were brought from Virginia to which they had been imported from England by the ladies who married the brave adventurers, who followed after Captain John Smith into Virginia.

This afternoon a young man was working among the roses. I walked in at the open gate and told him my mission was one of curiosity. From the welcome he gave me I judged we well have been a member of the family—(I had to see you, etc. come right in. I'll be delighted to show you the old place.)—The young gentleman proved to be a nephew of Major Brinsmade. Much of the good old hospitality still lingers about the historic old home. The birds in the cherry trees and in the sweet magnolias that guard the walk, the scent of the roses and even the very atmosphere about the old place seem to breathe an eternal welcome and good will to man.

"The eastern side of the Brinsmade home is wholly taken up by the big drawing room where Anne gave her fancy dress ball. From the windows might be seen through the trees in the grounds the Father of Waters below. But the room is gloomy now, that once was gay, and a heavy coat of soot is spread on the porch at the back where the apple blossoms still fall thickly in the spring. The large black town line collected about the place. The garden still struggles on but the giant trees of the forest are dying and dead. Brinsmade Road itself once the drive of fashion, is no more. Trucks and cars crowd the streets which follow its once rural windings and gone forever are those comely wooded hills and green pastures, save in the memory of those who have been spared to dream. Still the old house stands, begun, but stately, rebuking the sordid life around it. Still come into it, the Brinsmade's to marriage and to death."

The carpet in the old drawing room has been in use in the same room since 1810 and is still surprisingly presentable and serviceable. Winston Churchill graduated at the Smith's Academy in St. Louis, when a boy and later graduated at Annapolis Naval Academy.

Mr. Churchill and his wife spend most every year two weeks of Christmas holidays under the old roof. Mr. Churchill's wife is a niece of "Major Brinsmade" who has now been dead several years, although members of his family still occupy the old home.

Every room in the house is quaint and interesting. Old fashioned and huge old bookcases and great old tables and high backed chairs. Beds with crilling high heads and great canopies and carved mahogany bureaus of King Charles design.

St. Louis has made greater strides in progress in the last six years and in years since the Fair especially, than any large city ever made before in an equal number of years. The transformation within the last three years has been marvelous. Many old places of historic interest are fast being destroyed by the ruthless march of progress. Still much of the old spirit of good will and hospitality still lingers about the city.

But the Brinsmade home will soon follow the inevitable path of speedy decay and destruction unless St. Louis seek fit to preserve it as one of the worthy landmarks and virile generation, marking several decades in our nation's history.

Across the river down near old Kankakee, winding through the Olney Valley is an old road trail called "Tomorrow Way."

"Tomorrow Way" leads to Koholka where Rogers Clark and La Fayette, And Captain Bonville and Marquette.

And Pontiac so stern and bold. All councils held in days of old.

The "Tomorrow Way" of life leads quickly away from the good old days of yesterday and today. Sometimes it is profitable to pause a moment on "Tomorrow Way" and consider the good old ways yesterday.

"When men lived in a grander way with simpler hospitality."

Yours truly,
ROBERT SCHLERNITZAUER.

The First Aid graduate, with his diploma and button, receives the First Aid case, or outfit ready for emergency. The First Aid button or badge gives a recognition that entitles the First Aid man to pass police lines, on any occasion of danger to human life.

In New England cities, New York city, Philadelphia and cities of the middle west, First Aid classes are being organized in police, and fire departments. A number of railroads have organized First Aid classes, and the Salvation Army in all large cities include First Aid classes in their system of work.

JANESVILLE LADIES SHOULD FEAR GERMS

London Lancet Makes Startling Declaration as to Danger of Old Playing Cards.

When Janesville ladies sit down to a friendly game of bridge they should be sure they are playing with a new pack of cards. According to a London Lancet, dangers hitherto unsuspected lurk in the innocent playing cards. Packs that have been used more than once are said to be hotbeds of deadly microbes which deal forth colds and influenza and the luckless bridge player loses not only the game but catches some disease to boot. A Janesville hostess who plays and entertains at bridge frequently, smiled when told of the dangers she was darning. Not only smiled but laughed as her home is well filled with prizes which the little goddess of fate has thrown her way. However, the London Lancet is an authority on germs and such things as bridge players should beware.

THIS IS A DAY OF HAPPY MEMORIES

FOR MR. AND MRS. S. D. PHELPS, PIONEER RESIDENTS.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS AGO

Relatives and Friends Join in Celebration—War Veteran Tells of Hauling Wheat to Milwaukee with Oxen.

For Sherman D. Phelps, Civil War veteran and pioneer citizen, and his worthy wife and helpmeet, Memorial Day—particularly this one—has a double significance. Sorrowful recollections, indeed, are almost completely thrust aside by the happy recollections of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. Phelps was born in Medina county, Ohio, on April 22, 1835, and came with his parents to dwell in the town of La Prairie on the first day of October, 1839. Mrs. Phelps, who was Miss Ellen J. Mason, a daughter of the late Thurston Mason, came to Rock county in 1855. The wedding ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents on Locust street on May 30, 1858. The Rev. Mr. Anderson, a Baptist clergyman who was living in Chicago when last heard from, performing the ceremony.

Their children are: S. D. Phelps of Minneapolis; Arthur A. Phelps, Junior member of the Chicago shoe manufacturing firm of Fargo & Phelps; Miss Alta M. Phelps, who makes her home with her parents, and Miss Laura A. Phelps of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Besides the children, Mrs. Phelps has a daughter, Mrs. DeCamp of Minneapolis, a niece; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ellis of Milwaukee, a nephew and niece; Mrs. Theron Stark of Sycamore, Ill., another niece; Mrs. O. C. Erickson of Milwaukee; and their old neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stanton who were present at the ceremony half a century ago, are expected to participate in the celebration. There was a big dinner at the home, 53 Sharon street, this noon and there is to be another one at six o'clock. This evening a reception will be given for all their old friends and the U. S. A. comrades of Mr. Phelps. Several of the relatives arrived during the night and surprised the happy couple at breakfast. Among the handsome gifts were one of the St. Gaudens $20 gold which the government has retired and which are already at a big premium.

Though seventy-three and seventy years old, respectively, Mr. and Mrs. Phelps are as active, healthy, and happy as most people fifteen years their juniors. The former served with Company F, Sixteenth Wisconsin Infantry, for two years, and after his return from the war was actively engaged in well-paying and money-making operations. He can tell from personal experience of the week's pilgrimages to Milwaukee with the slow-moving oxen to sell wheat at 23 cents a bushel; of Chicago without a railroad, and of the wilderness of oak openings which marked most of the present site of Janesville, with only three houses standing between here and Shovelers. About two years after the war the couple came to Janesville to reside and Mr. Phelps retired from business about ten years ago. Their host of friends and acquaintances in city and county will wish them two pioneers long continued good health and happiness in the town which they have known from its infancy.

Battlefield Memories Recalled Here On Memorial Day

Grand Army men hereabouts who fought at Antietam remember the fierce fighting around Dunker's Church. This photograph was taken in 1862 as the dead artillery men were about a Confederate battery near church.

REVELATION TO OLD SOLDIERS.

Veterans Face to Face Today With Scenes They Thought Were Gone Forever.

CONTRIVERSY IN THIS CITY.

Grand Army men have been greatly interested during the last few days in the discovery of 7,000 glass negatives taken, under the protection of the Secret Service, in the wake of the armies from 1861 to '65. The information coming at this time, when public interest is turned toward Memorial Day, is a revelation. Several prominent veterans have declared that they know positively that there were no cameras in the army during the Civil War. One, however, is pending on a libel charge as a result of this agitation.

The government has vouched for the authenticity of the old negatives and within the last few days hundreds of affidavits have been signed by old soldiers who saw the cameras on the battlefields. The Pinkerton Detective Agency also vouches for the genuineness of the remarkable negatives as they were taken with the direct knowledge of Allan Pinkerton, who was the first chief of the secret service.

As a Memorial Day tribute to the old soldiers, and especially in a desire to give them an opportunity to look once more upon scenes which they supposed no human eyes would ever again witness, permission has been secured to here reproduce a few of the marvelous negatives that have been taken and the recent agitation. The negatives are here presented from the originals with only the slightest retouching where chemical action makes it absolutely necessary. Photographers who have examined the originals state that they are the finest specimens of the old wet plate process that they have ever seen. While some of the glass plates are broken or "clouded," most of them are remarkably clear and reveal the Civil War in all its heroism and tragedy. Their mission in these pages on this Memorial Day is one of peace—that all may look upon the horrors of war and pledge their manhood to "peace on earth, good will toward man."

There are veterans in this city who have marched in every Memorial Day parade. At a Grand Army post a few evenings ago a discussion arose regarding the first Decoration Day, as it then was called. The exact date seemed to be in dispute. The official records were finally searched and it was found that it was not until three years after the close of the war.

There are also veterans in this city who marched in the greatest peace pageant in the history of the world, just forty-three years ago, when six hundred thousand soldier boys swung down Pennsylvania avenue in long columns of fours, passing in review before President Johnson en route to their homes. In all the world there probably was never such an army of fighting men. For two days the magnificent pageant swept through the national capital.

The extreme youth of these patriots is one of the most remarkable records in warfare, for the average age of the soldier in the army and navy at enlistment was but nineteen years. Of the 117,000 over 21 years of age, 1,152,783 were 21 years old and under; 1,151,428 were 18 years old and under; 844,891 were 17 years old and under; 231,021 were 16 years old and under; 104,987 were 15 years old and under; 1,523 were 14 years old and under; 200 were 13 years old and under; 278 were 12 years old and under.

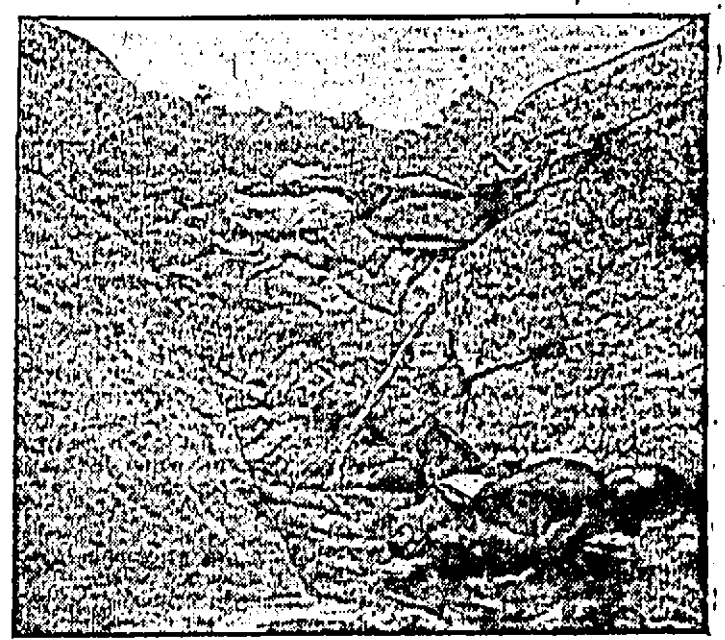

G. A. R. HONORS DEAD COMRADES.

Many Veterans Pass Through Streets of This City For the Last Time Memorial Day.

HEROES DYING EVERY HOUR.

Memorial Day in this city witnesses more than ever before, the rapidly thinning ranks of the warriors who offered their lives to their country in the greatest conflict that this world has ever known. The heroes who but a few years ago marched through the streets, thronged with cheering crowds and waving flags, are to-day white-haired old patriots whose fighting days are over. They pass once more along the thoroughfares, many of them for the last time, to receive the ovation of the great American heart which is extended to them on this Memorial Day.

Thousands of newly-made graves bear witness. More than thirty regiments of battle-scarred veterans have answered the bugle call to the ranks of the great army of the ages since last Memorial Day. Of the 2,341,906 men sworn into the defense of the nation nearly a half century ago, only about a half million remain to observe this Memorial Day while nearly two and one-half million have gone to their eternal peace. It was estimated a few days ago that nearly forty-five thousand old soldiers have died since last Memorial Day—this means that an old soldier is dying every twelve minutes.

Soldiers who fought at Gettysburg recall the tragic death of General Wood and Lieut. Hazlett who were killed by Confederate sharpshooters, stationed in Devil's Den on Little Round Top. This photograph was taken in 1863 when the Confederate sharpshooter was found dead in the den.

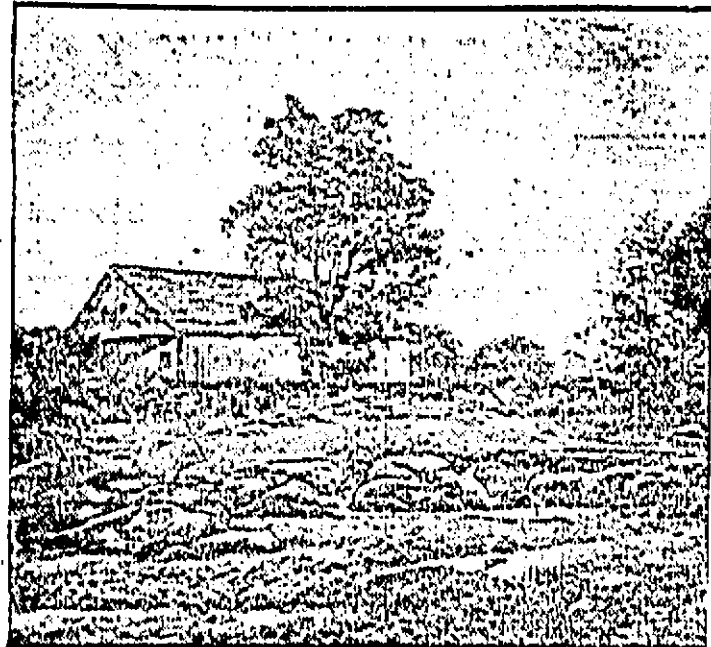

Every soldier who marches on this Memorial Day has looked upon scenes similar to this. The photograph was taken in September, 1862, on the battlefield of Antietam and shows the rows of dead ready for burial.

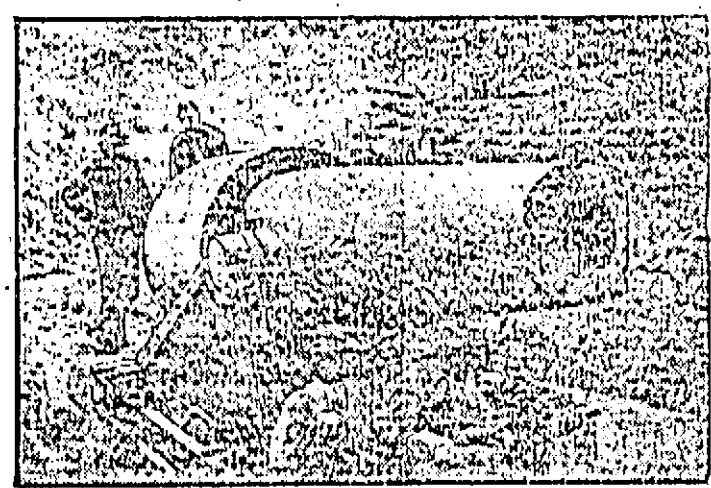

This photograph was taken immediately after the evacuation and surrender of Richmond, the Confederate capital in 1865. It pictures the section of the city burned by the Confederates during their retreat.

Veterans say that often bodies were scantily covered with earth at burial. This photograph was taken in 1864 during the removal of skeletons of dead soldiers from the field several months after the battle of Cold Harbor.

Troost's barn is familiar to veterans who fought at Gettysburg. Photograph was taken in July, 1863, when sixty-five out of eighty artillery horses lay dead upon the field.

G. A. R. men in this city who took part in the larger artillery battles may recall a bursted gun as a common sight. This photograph was taken in Battery Strong at Charleston and shows a 300 pounder parrott gun after the bursting of the muzzle. The rough edges of the gun were chiseled down and the gun was used throughout the attack on Fort Sumter.

In Memoriam.

Where the banners waved and golden led—
Where the sabers flashed and the bullets flew;
Where grapeshot hissed and screaming sholl
Struck brave men down in gray and blue,
Where the cannon roared and muskets crashed—
Where Death reaped and none said him nay;
On meadow green and wooded hill
They fought and died—the blue and gray,
On the river's shore—on the barren field—
An army massed or a hundred few;
They met and fought, and fought and fell—
The gallant gray and the gallant blue,
On sea and land, in fort and fleet—
Cheering the flag that led the way;
Fighting and dying in loyal faith—
The men in blue and the men in gray—
The men in gray and the men in blue;
Under the sunshine—under the dew,
They will fight no more—they silently sleep—
Tears for the fallen in blue or in gray;
Prayers unto Heaven that never again

The gray and the blue in battle array.

It comes! The sacred day
In honor of the heroes who
For love of country died—
The day for spreading wreaths
And giving voice to praise
Of worth that sacrificed itself—
O sacred day of days.

Men put their tasks aside,
And heroes bent and gray
Trudge forth to where their comrades lie,
And thousands rush away
To wood and field and lake
And whoop and rip and tear,
And if they know the meaning of
The day they never care.

The True Man.
Who is a true man? He who does
The truth, and never holds a principle on which he is not prepared in any hour to act, and in any hour to risk
the consequences of holding it—Thomas Carlyle.

Unjust as Well.
It is unreasonable to class the man who will not borrow trouble with the one who doesn't care.

SECRETED FOR 43 YEARS.

Negatives Here Shown Have Been Withheld From Public View Since War—Existence Practically Unknown Until Now.

Military men in this city, and those interested in historical records, have known nothing of the existence of these negatives and state that it is undoubtedly the first time that the camera was used in war. For forty-three years the negatives from which these proofs were taken have been in storage, secreted from public view. The drama now for the first time revealed by the lens is one of intense realism. In it one can almost hear the beat of the drum and the call of the bugle. It brings one face to face with the maddest of battles; the pattern of the soldier's last hour; and dead martyrs on field of carnage.

There are forty-eight millions who have been born here or immigrated into this country since the beginning of the Civil War. These people have no personal knowledge of it and their information is gathered from the narratives of others. These Brady negatives will come as a revelation to them and give a truer understanding of the meaning of it all. The good service they may do for the nation in this respect cannot be estimated.

In the conflicts within the lifetime of men now living, more than three billions of dollars sterling have been thrown into the cannon's mouth, and nearly five millions of human lives have fallen martyrs to the battlefield. In the United States of America, a government founded on the Brotherhood of Man, the greatest expenditure since the beginning of the Republic has been for bloodshed, over six billions for war, nearly two billions for navy, and about three and one-half billion for pensions more than eleven billions out of a total of something over nineteen billions of dollars.

All the soldiers who fought under General Grant will recognize this photograph. It was taken while he was in the Mississippi campaign in 1863.

TRAGIC DEATH OF BRADY.

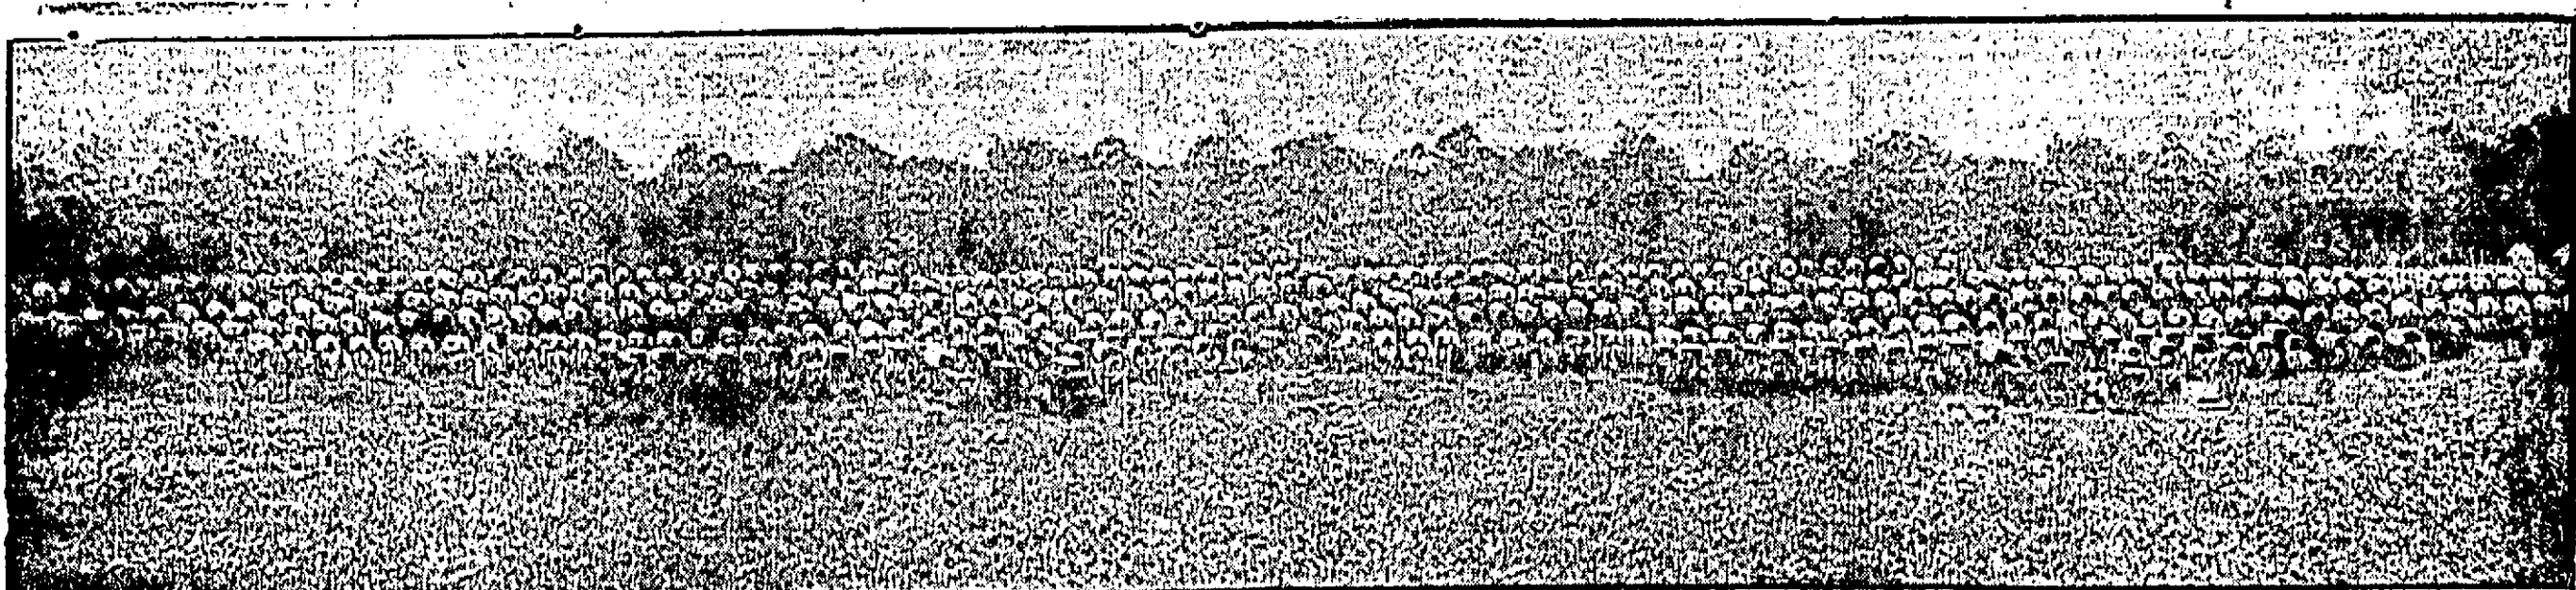

Photographer Who Followed the Army Through Civil War, Under Protection of Secret Service, Lost His Negatives.

Mathew Brady, the photographer who followed the armies through the Civil War and secured the 7,000 negatives which today form the greatest record in existence of the conflict, died not long ago in poverty. Brady lost every dollar he ever owned in the undertaking and his negatives were held as security for storage bills which he was unable to pay, despite the fact that General Garfield remarked that they were worth $100,000.

The records in the war department show that Brady was given $28,600 for his services, but this did not meet his indebtedness for the lost complete control of the property which he believed would ultimately result in his fortune.

As a financial project Brady's peterson work was a dire failure. The first obstacle was the securing of men competent to operate a camera. Nearly every able-bodied man was engaged in warfare. The science was new and required a knowledge of chemistry. Brady's life, which seems to have been burdened with more ill luck than the ordinary lot of man, found little relief in its venerable years. After fortune followed him to the very threshold of his last hour. He died about eight years ago in New York, with a few staunch friends, but without money and without public recognition for his services to mankind.

Photographs loaned from collection of Edward D. Eaton, Hartford, Ct., copyrighted 1908, by Edward D. Eaton.

Original negative in waterproof duplicate taken at Brady's Station, Virginia, in May, 1863, while a wagon train of ammunition and provisions was being "parked" from the approaching enemy.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The panorama of life is the great moving picture show which engages us as actors the talent of every individual. The baby opens its eyes and is attracted by the smile of a mother's greeting, and hushed to sleep by the lullaby which has long been the subject of song and story.

A group of little children gather in the school room and embryo minds grasp a simple thought presented by an intelligent teacher who combines with art, a love for child life, which wins in return love and attention.

So life begins and the rapidly moving picture soon presents young men and women standing at the threshold, filled with hope and ambition, eager to advance to the middle of the stage.

Ten years glide by and these boys and girls are the men and women of the new generation. The most of them are busy actors in the great drama and a limited number have gained prominence.

Hope still cheers the heart and stimulates the mind, in this great army of new recruits, for the age of 30 is not a discouraging age, and young men and women are up before fairly dawn, ready to renew the fight.

It is the age when the boy has ceased to be a boy and becomes a full-fledged man, and when the girl, not already a housewife settles down to single-blessedness and content.

But the years of accomplishment are yet ahead, and the moving picture increases in momentum, unfolding at every turn of the wheel a view of the actors as they force to the front or drop out by the way.

Soon the summit is passed, and as the panorama slips down the shady slope, hope retreats to make room for contentment or regret, and in the shadow of enforced inactivity, the players take a retrospective view, disclosing the finished product, seldom satisfying, but always finished so far as the earthly stage is concerned.

If you have ever gone behind the scenes, in a moving picture show, you have noticed a lot of idle records on the shelf; so in the great panorama of life, down near the end of the journey, and far removed from the footlights, are a lot of old players on the shelf.

They may not interest you very much, for they are usually full of advice and suggestion, better preachers than they have been players, but object lessons, nevertheless, for they have been over the course, and are in at the finish, exactly where all players will be who live out allotted time.

Ask about experiences and they will tell you that at 30 they were full of hope and fired with ambition. At 40 they were in the midst of the fray. At 50 they began to recognize wasted opportunities, and at 60 were satisfied that they were never intended for stars in the great company of players striving for the mastery. This is life from the book itself, and not a fairy tale.

Every neighborhood is represented by these oldtime actors, and a group of mourners in every cemetery marks the resting-place of those who have passed on.

Janesville has its quota of these veteran performers—men who 25 years ago were in the prime of manhood, possessed of physical facilities equal to almost any strain, and mentally

MURDEROUS WORDS.

But for our own bitter tone, though we love our own the best.

"Go jump into the lake and drown yourself!" exclaimed Mrs. Joseph Garrow of Chicago to her husband. They had been quarreling about nothing in particular.

Garrow did not answer, but sat down and wrote a note and immediately went out and threw himself into the lake.

Perhaps the man was temporarily insane.

But the great pity of it came to the sobbing wife, who moaned over the man's dead body: "Oh, Joe, deary, I didn't mean it that way! It was only joking. Oh, Joe, I didn't mean it that way!"

Of course she didn't mean it that way.

Nor do we mean it who speak the bitter words to those who are most dear to us.

What, then, do we mean?

We mean simply to take the sharp retort, to return word for word, to "get even," which is not at all a laudable thing. And as the quarrel grows passion mounts. Anger and temporary madness take the place of judgment and discretion. And at "the last word" a quick hatred is fanned into life which declares the cruel speech that cuts like a knife.

We forget that every rash spasm of hatred momentarily indulged has in it, to some degree at least, the murder motive. It was not without knowledge of the human heart that the Nazarene gave utterance to the ominous declaration, "Whoso hateth his brother is a murderer." That is to say, the motive is the essence of the crime. All our laws and our moralities are based on motive.

In her repentance that came too late this woman must have felt and will always feel that it was her harsh and unfeeling words that drove her husband to his death.

And the moral of it?

Why, you by your hateful speech may not drive your dear ones to the verge of despair, but by the manner of your speech or caustic utterances you may wound them to the very core. They may not retort in kind, but you can make their lives scarcely worth the living.

A blow in the face is infinitely to be preferred to the spiteful thrust of ungenerous comment.

Words may be murderous things.

Happy are we if we have really learned to practice the blessed truth that "a soft answer turneth away wrath."

Little Study Overworked Him.

Dispatches say a noted football player's mind has been affected by over-study. Sounds a good deal like an automobile suffering from spavins.

MEMORIAL DAY

Twenty years ago Memorial day was occasion for the suspension of business and a long line of march to the silent city on the hill, in which civilians as well as Grand Army men freely participated.

But conditions are gradually changing and while the day is celebrated as a national holiday, its more sacred observance is now left to the little groups of old soldiers who continue to gather at the little mounds which mark the resting-places of departed comrades.

This change of sentiment is to be expected, for as the ranks of veterans are rapidly thinning out, the same change is going on in the ranks of civilians, and the men and women of 60 are very largely of the past.

To the new generation, the war of the rebellion is a matter of history rather than of sad experience, and however sacred the history may be, it lacks the significance of personal contact.

This seeming neglect in observance of the day, is not, however, a mark of disrespect, for the men and women of the present generation appreciate keenly the spirit of sacrifice and patriotism which saved the nation in its darkest hours of peril.

They are offspring of the fathers and mothers who sacrificed life and loved ones to preserve the union, and possessed of the same spirit of patriotism and loyalty.

Memorial day will live in song and story, long after the last old comrade has answered the final roll call, and generations yet unborn will thank God for the men of '61.

DRUNKENNESS

A Curable Disease

Eminent Physicians and Scientific Men Agree That it Should be Treated as Such.

Drunkenness is a progressive disease; the moderate drinker is not satisfied with two or three drinks a day, the craving for more and more becomes irresistible as the disease advances; the result is Chronic Alcoholism.

The treatment used successfully by thousands right in their own homes is Orriue. It is a scientific cure for Drunkenness and has given such universal satisfaction that it is sold under a positive guarantee to effect a cure or your money will be refunded. This guarantee is given in good faith and is carried out to the letter. Orriue is not a new remedy; it has been sold by the leading druggists in every city for years. It has lifted tens of thousands from the depths to worthy manhood and has the hearty endorsement of grateful men and women in every state in the Union.

Orriue No. 1 is the secret remedy; Orriue No. 2, is for those willing to take the treatment. Either form costs $1.00. The guarantee is the same in either case. DECORATE GRAVES OF SOLDIER DEAD

VETERANS WENT TO THE CEMETERY THIS MORNING.

EXERCISES AT WEST SIDE

Special Program Will be Given at the Rink This Afternoon by the G. A. R.

All through the morning a continuous stream of people in carriages and the street cars went toward the cemetery to observe Decoration Day by decorating the graves of those who died for their country. The fine weather following so many days of rain caused an unusually large number of people to attend the exercises held this morning.

At eight thirty the veterans of the Civil War assembled at their hall and to the inspiring notes of the life and death march composed of Moore, Truman, Brunson, Weaver, and Ogden marched to the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets where they took the street cars for the cemetery. Forty-six veterans of the war of the rebellion were in line led by Comrade Bruno who carried the colors. He was followed by the life and death march and the rest of the comrades fell in line. Two large carriages filled with members of the Woman's Relief Corps accompanied the veterans and a huge wagon load of flowers was also taken to the cemetery in addition to the private offerings.

Shortly after the G. A. R. left the Spanish War Veterans fell in and marched to the depot where they took the street cars for the cemetery. Twenty-one veterans marched, while others drove. "Hallowed members of the ladies' auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans with huge bouquets of flowers drove out.

Spanish War Veterans.
The exercises conducted by the Spanish War Veterans over their lot at the cemetery were in charge of Captain Hanson, officer of the day; Edwin Paltor, Commander, and John Snyder, chaplain. At the close of the exercises a firing squad composed of B. Brown, H. Johnson, J. Dixon, A. Pearl, P. Coryell, H. Hill, T. Wing and P. Yeoman, under command of Captain Hanson, fired six volleys over the graves. Albert Nott acted as color bearer and Lawrence Thiele was the bugler.

Afternoon Exercises.
This afternoon the Rev. Jesse Cole will deliver the chief address at the exercises at the rink. Rev. Jesse Cole was commissary sergeant in the eighth Wisconsin during the war, of which regiment J. L. Bear was a member. Mr. Bear and Rev. Jesse Cole are old comrades therefore and Rev. Cole is visiting at the Bear home during his stay here.
The civil war veterans will meet at the Post hall at one-thirty and march from there to the rink.
The United Spanish War Veterans meet this evening to complete the arrangements for their program and it is possible they will march with the G. A. R.

BUNCO GAME ON LOCAL LAWYERS?

At Least One Was Persuaded to Advance $20 for Transportation Here of Prospective Client from Marshland.

When lawyers are bunched their professional pride is quite liable to step in and veto the natural impulse to appeal to the police. While it is not absolutely certain that the episode which is about to be related was a game of bluff, the odds are all on that side. Yet the prospective client who sought on Thursday to interview nearly all of the legal lights in the city and who succeeded in persuading at least one of them to advance $20 to enable him to journey to Marshland, from whence he came, and bring back an answer to one of the railroad companies, though not expected even by the barrister who parted with the doublet to honor this city with another visit, was allowed to go his way without interference. The case, though it was to be tried on a contingent fee basis, looked like easy money—and these are a little dull. A brackman nephew of the man from Marshland, whom we will call Boggs for convenience, though that was not the name he gave, had been pitched off a freight car and under the wheels when the top rung of the car-ladder pulled out of its rotten moorings. The nephew, who had both of his hands, Mr. Boggs, who chanced to be looking on the same train, had taken precautions to save the rotten sections of the ladder and the iron bar, as well as take down the name and number of the car. No detail had been overlooked. With pencil and paper he carefully diagrammed the location of the tracks and trains and furnished full information regarding the accident. His nephew, he said, would sign any reasonable agreement which he might make for him. The first lawyer with whom he talked reminded Mr. Boggs that "nephew" didn't have any hands, but received only a scornful look for trifling with trifling when great issues were at stake. The inquisitive attorney insisted on knowing the name of the nephew and other details which seemed of no present importance to Boggs and the latter presently resorted to eavesdropping and told his prospective employer that he wouldn't trust him to try the case alone, anyway. When a trace had been patched up Boggs persuaded Attorney A. to take him to the office of Attorney B. whom A. had spoken of retaining as assistant counsel. Once in the office of B. Boggs again became impatient with A. and requested a private conference with the man who would pay his attention to his diagrams and seemed to take a more intelligent view of the case. Lawyer B. demurred but A. finally decided that it would be just as well to humor the touchy customer and withdrew. It is known that Boggs visited nearly every law office in the city. In several instances the attorneys seemed to be out; in several more they gravely hinted at the "touch" and in still others they cut the interview short and encouraged Mr. Boggs to be on his way. Just how large the harvest was is not known. Because, as has been remarked before, the ones who appear to have been "stung" are brooding over their troubles in silence. Of course there is just a possibility that Mr. Boggs may return here Monday with the mangled nephew as he agreed to do. But the prospect is far from cheering.

GOING AHEAD WITH WORK

Good Organizations Already Completed According to Reports of Friends of Favorites.

That the campaign for United States senator is awaiting the return of Senator James Stephenson from Washington is apparent to all. Until he arrives home and states his position everything is more or less unsettled. There are three candidates in the field already, all avowed aspirants for the office and two others have been mentioned. The three now in the race, Hatten, Cook and McGovern, are all busy with their campaign plans and ready for the campaign of rapid fire gun when Stephenson's plans are known. The two dark horses frequently mentioned are of interest to Janesville and the first district residents. Frequent references to John M. Whitehead as a possibility are found in the state press. Despite the senator's frequent denials that he seeks the office and refuses to allow his friends to even urge him to allow his name to be used, James Monahan of Burlington is the other first district man whose name is mentioned in this connection. In fact friends of Mr. Monahan have sounded many conservative leaders to see what his chances would be within the past week. It is evident that Henry Allen Cooper does not plan to enter the race being content with a possible re-nomination to congress.

Candidates Show Activity.

In spite of the apparent quiet, sometimes seeming to amount almost to indifference on the part of W. H. Hatten, and his non-committal attitude when the subject is broached, Mr. Hatten is said to be showing the most activity of the three candidates now in the open. He has an active campaign already under way. In addition to W. H. Dick, who will be Mr. Hatten's campaign manager, he has engaged W. W. Powell who will assist in the work of organization. The campaign of Francis L. McGovern is also fairly well under way. His manager, William Egan, asserts that Mr. McGovern will receive more support from the state outside of Milwaukee than any one supposes possible. He claims that the returns received from republicans in the interior have been far in excess of expectations. This encourages his friends to claim that he will be an important factor in the result even if he does not win out.

When Will Stephenson Come Out?

The Cook campaign has been apparently confined so far as organization is concerned, to Calumet and Winnebago counties. If he has been at work elsewhere that work has been successfully covered up and does not show on the surface. For all that the general opinion is that Mr. Cook will be found well in front before the campaign has gone far.

The candidates now in the field are going forward under the understanding that Mr. Stephenson will be in the race. It is believed that he will announce his candidacy during the Chicago convention if this announcement should not come on his return from Washington. In some quarters it is believed the senator will announce his candidacy as soon as he reaches the state and has time to talk matters over with his friends. This delay in his announcement, it is said, will not be detrimental as quiet work in his behalf has been done and it is intimated that he will be found as well equipped with an organization as any of his opponents. The impression seems to be gaining that W. H. Cook will not enter the race if Senator Stephenson becomes a candidate.

JANESVILLE'S REMARKABLE VALUES IN MONUMENTS.

A gentleman from Skiley, Ia., visiting friends in Janesville passed the store of Mrs. F. A. Bennett and was attracted by the beautiful monuments and exquisite markings. He looked over the stock and was very much taken with the monuments and believed he could save $50.

He looked around at the other places and came back the next day with his friend and purchased this monument at $25 more than was asked for similar goods at other places, claiming that the lettering was superior not only to other lettering in Janesville, but to anything he had ever seen.

STARTS A NEW WORK FOR POOR OF CITY

Former Member of the Salvation Army Helping Several Poor Families.

Mrs. John Melton, formerly a member of the Salvation Army, has begun a missionary work in the city separate from that followed by the Army and last night collected $3.67 from different citizens so that she might pay the rent of a poor woman who was deserted by her husband, has three small children to support, ranging from two to six years and as a final misfortune, was driven from her home because of failure to pay rent. Mrs. Melton found the woman in the depths of despair sleeping in box cars or where she could and managed to gather together some furniture, groceries and last night paid the rent. While not posing as a new organization Mrs. Melton says she withdrew from the Salvation Army so that she could work among the poor directly. A working woman herself she has made arrangements with a charitable lady on Pearl street to disburse the money she collects for her and while she is busy with her daily work of washing and cleaning, listens to the pleas for aid. It is a good she has begun.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 30.—
A Night Of Burglaries—A gang of burglars was busy in this city last night. Their efforts were crowned with success in two of the localities that we have heard of. They visited the residence of Mr. S. L. Jansen and effected an entrance at the rear of the building. Proceeding to the sleeping room of Mr. J., they found his vest which contained a watch worth two hundred dollars. This they pocketed, but just as this juncture
Mr. J. awakened and jumped out on the floor, the intruder, beating a hasty retreat, meantime. But for this interruption the burglar would doubtless have secured quite a nice sum in greenbacks which were in a pocket convenient to his reach.

The house of Mr. J. B. Hume in the fourth ward was also entered between three and four this morning.
In this instance the burglar used a
"jimmy" to turn the key in the lock,
"jimmy" to turn the key in the lock,
and opening the door, went directly to the room of Mr. H., where the intruder rifled a vest and pantaloons pocket, taking a watch and some fifteen or fifteen dollars in money.
The presence awakened Mrs. Hume, who uttered a scream, which caused the rascal to decamp with his booty.

On the hill house of Mr. G. F.
Morris was invaded and thoroughly ransacked, as half burnt matches in nearly every room indicate, but nothing was missed except a pocket book which was taken from the pocket of Mr. Morris's son. This was left in the door yard with the contents laying nearby.

The kitchen door of Mr. H. L.
Smith's house was also opened by turning the key in the lock from the outside. But before the burglar had got fairly inside he was frightened by a member of the family who started to come down stairs. Our citizens will see the necessity of getting their shootings from ready for these night proceedings.

AUTO RACER IS DASHED TO DEATH

EMANUEL CEDRINO IS KILLED
ON THE PIMLICO TRACK.

WHEEL OF HIS CAR BREAKS

Expert Italian Driver Was Going at Terrific Speed on the Trials for Saturday's Races.

Baltimore, Md., May 29.—Emanuel Cedrino, the Italian automobile driver, was instantly killed on Pimlico race track Friday evening. He had been preparing for races in which he was to have taken part Saturday and was making some very fast miles.

One mile had just been finished in 51 seconds and he had passed the grandstand and rounded the first corner of the track when spectators saw his car shoot into the air and turn a somersault, landing on the track upside down. Those who rushed to the spot found Cedrino stretched upon his back, dead, with a horrible gash in the back of his head and portions of his brain scattered about. He was some distance from the car, from which he had apparently been thrown as it went over, and it is supposed that his head struck the fence.

His Brain Dashed Out.
Dr. Herbert Schoenrich, who was watching the practice spins of the entrants in the races, reached Cedrino's side almost before the dust of the accident had cleared away. He found that the occipital bone had been torn out entirely and that a large portion of the brain was also missing.

The accident appears to have been caused by the collapse of the front wheel on the right hand side of the car. It was a wooden wheel and small fragments of it were all that could be found after the accident. The tire was found practically intact. The machine was wrecked.

Was Going at Great Speed.
Cedrino arrived here Thursday and had expressed himself as sure to break the records from one to 25 miles. Earlier in the afternoon he had made a circuit of the track in 56 seconds. When he brought out his car for his final work for the day he said to the promoter of the races that he liked the track and particularly the turns, and that he would make a mile in 56 seconds. He made three or four circuits of the track, each faster than the preceding one, and at the time of the accident was probably going at the rate of a mile in 56 seconds.

The car was the one in which he made all his records and was designed by Cedrino himself in 1905. He stated, recently that it had been run 3,000 miles without material repairs.

Cedrino, several years before his debut in the United States as an expert driver in automobile races, was chauffeur to Queen Helena of Italy.
